SEXUAL VIOLENCE & INDIVIDUALS WHO IDENTIFY AS LGBTQ

Research Brief

The publications below examine sexual violence – in the form of hate or bias-motivated crimes, intimate partner violence, childhood sexual abuse, and adult sexual assault – against victims who identify as lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer or questioning (LGBTQ).

Sexual assault is extremely damaging to the health and well-being of victims who identify as LGBTQ. The studies examined in this brief found correlations between sexual assault victimization and high-risk sexual behaviors, mood disorders (i.e., depression), and suicide attempts among individuals who identify as LGBTQ. In the absence of accessible LGBTQ-affirming services, victims may encounter barriers to post-assault services due to homophobia and transphobia. Additionally, intersections between systems of inequality and discrimination such as homophobia, transphobia, misogyny, ableism, and racism may heighten risks and challenges for diverse subsets of the LGBTQ population.

This research brief can assist sexual assault advocates, LGBTQ community advocates, mental health professionals, and medical personnel in understanding the issues confronting survivors who identify as LGBTQ. Accessible and affirming post-assault services are crucial for all survivors regardless of sexual orientation or gender Identity, requiring service providers to be knowledgeable about LGBTQ issues.

Retrieved from VAWNnet, National Online Resource Center on Violence Against Women: http://new.vawnet.org/Assoc_Files_VAWnet/AR_LGBTSexualViolence.pdf

Aims: This article highlights disproportionate rates of sexual assault against individuals who identify as LGBTQ and stresses the importance of LGBTQ-affirming, culturally competent services for sexual assault survivors.

Methods: Gentlewarrior and Fountain explore multiple research papers on sexual assault against LGBTQ people published in the 1990s and 2000s.

Key results:

- Due to societal oppression of individuals and communities who identify as LGBTQ, some may be Directed by the Act of the Companies 2001, the Australian insolvency laws exist mainly to establish and maintain a balance between the interests of a which became insolvent, its creditors and the community general conditions that could also be affected by the difficulties financial assets of the company. Insolvent companies usually lose capacity to increase the share capital and their suppliers can only honor collection-on-handling (cod) transactions or require Ac a AransomAc a also to make payments before transactions can proceed.By claiming a presumption of insolvency in some cases , creditors can rely on presumptions of insolvency if the proof of insolvency is almost impossible. Australian insolvency laws actually contribute strike a balance between the interests of the debtor and their creditors. Similarly, the laws provide that the its creditors should have the same and fair involvement and contribution to the resolution of the insolvency problem. This opens the way for the company to seek bankruptcy proceedings for the company. The controlling administration process involves a receiver who Ac aReceive "A" The assets that have secured the debt, sell them and then use the proceeds to satisfy the debt. Companies that have a probability realistic recovery often initiate proceedings for this option. Photo courtesy: @ Cyton .photography / The liquidation of dell.to, on the other hand, occurs when all remaining resources of the company are collected, valued and then sold. Australian law sets out specific insolvency criteria and business experts indicate several signs that a company could soon face if the company is considered safe, it can enter a nonliquidation agreement with its creditors, or can choose to proceed with formal insolvency proceedings. The laws of Australian insolvency should have that the debts are discharged and that insolvency proceedings are resolved as quickly as possible A @ AA and with the least expense A @ AA. In the three months preceding the submission of the application, at least one financial issue must have been made to the company. PIÁ DA ASKMONEY.COM A creditor guaranteed under a guarantee agreement with the debtor usually initiates this insolvency procedure. This inability to fulfill its financial obligations quickly leads to growing financial problems if the issue A not A quickly addressed. The proceeds of the sale are used to satisfy the debts and obligations the company A. Australian insolvency laws also provide mechanisms in place to help the company recover if officials determine that A a possibility for the company to overcome the difficulties financial instruments. Another situation where a company the person who has been appointed to take possession of an asset of the company may be presumed insolvent" if an order A" was issued to appoint a receiver to apply a floating charge, and that the person A" was appointed to take possession of an asset of the company .Basic elements of the Australian insolvency lawsOnce a company A" determined to be insolvent, the assets and the finances of the company AAs are assessed to see if the company can recover and overcome financial collapse or if it has no chance realistic to recover its profitability financial institution. The most common insolvency management procedures in the country are voluntary management, liquidation and administration. A company deed (DOCA) A" another type of voluntary restructuring option. In the Corporations Act of 2001 this person was referred to as the controller. Australian law uses the term A @AinsolvencyA @ AA to refer to the corporations and bankruptcy in relation to individuals.A becomes insolvent when it no longer has the resources to pay its creditors when the credit payments or lump sums become due.
