Ansible works best if the passwordless access is configured on all nodes:
$ ssh-keygen
$ ssh-copy-id linaly@<HOST>
$ ssh linaly@<HOST>

Configuration, Inventory default(s):
$ cat /etc/ansible/hosts
$ grep host_file ansible.cfg

Priority in which the config files are processed:
1) ANSIBLE_CONFIG (an environment variable)
2) ./ansible.cfg (in the current directory)
3) ~/ansible.cfg
4) /etc/ansible/ansible.cfg

$ ansible --version <- shows what config file is currently being used

Commonly Modified Settings in "ansible.cfg":
inventory= Location of Ansible inventory file remote_user= Remote user account used to establish connections to managed hosts become= Enables/disables privilege escalation for operations on managed hosts (NOT BY DEFAULT!)
become_method= Defines privilege escalation method become_user= User account for escalating privileges become_ask_pass= Defines whether privilege escalation prompts for password

Default module (command, NOT SHELL!) is defined in "ansible.cfg" under 'defaults' section:
$ grep module_name /etc/ansible/ansible.cfg
 !If no module defined, predefined command module used

Run the playbook(s):
$ ansible -i localhost, <playbook>.yaml
 !When using the '-i' parameter, if the value is a 'list' (it contains at least one comma) it will be used as the inventory LIST
 !It can be either FQDN or IP address.
$ ansible -i /etc/ansible/hosts <playbook>.yaml
 !While the variable is a string, it will be used as the inventory PATH

Ansible verbosity:
$ ansible-playbook -v -i <HOST> <playbook>.yaml <- displays output data
$ ansible-playbook -vv -i <HOST> <playbook>.yaml <- displays output & input data
$ ansible-playbook -vvv -i <HOST> <playbook>.yaml <- information about connections
$ ansible-playbook -vvvv -i <HOST> <playbook>.yaml <- information about plugins

Inventory file examples:
[webservice] <- both hosts can be reduced to ns[01:02].linaly.io using regexp
ns01.linaly.io
ns02.linaly.io:1234 <- configured to listen on port 1234
